Local Ballan resident, Roger Moulton, has just successfully completed the 5 day Home Sustainability Assessor training through ecoMaster. Roger is now qualified and available to our local community to conduct Home Sustainability Assessments in your home. Roger can assess your home for its energy and water efficiency, and expertly suggest highly effective solutions to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, water consumption and energy bills.

A Home Sustainability Assessment by Roger is the first step to be approved for a Federal Government Low Interest Green Loan of up to $10,000 (interest free for 4 years) to install solar, water saving and energy efficient products in the home. However, householders do not need to commit to applying for a Green Loan in order to have their home assessed.

According to the needs of your home as identified in the Home Sustainability Assessment, the solutions to make your home more sustainable range from simple low or no cost behavioural changes and sustainable appliance purchasing through to retrofitting potential and renewable energy options.

ecoMaster's Home Sustainability Assessor training covers technical aspects of an assessment as well as the interpersonal skills needed to work effectively in the community, with participants conducting an actual assessment on a local home on the final day of the course. The training is provided in conjunction with the Australian Government's Green Loans Scheme which was launched on 1st July 2009. The scheme offers 360,000 free assessments to be conducted across Australia over the next five years, 75,000 of which will be granted up to $10,000 in Green Loans.

If you want to be more comfortable in your home over winter and summer whilst making a difference to your homes greenhouse gas emissions, then consider registering for an assessment by calling Roger on 0419 859 961 or calling the centralised booking service on 1800 895 076.
